

WEEKLY INTOUCH

fashion trauma Even celebs

More bomb than bombshell

Christina Aguilera's updated Marilyn look just proves that there was (and always will be) only one Ms. Monroe. While multi-strand necklaces are a hot trend, this supersized necklace is total overkill. She could salvage the outfit if she chucked the silly strands. As for the dress, she can keep the color and fit, but go with a floor-length silky sheath to accentuate her sexy figure.

Christina's winning look

▲ This simple, figure-bugging dress is the best way for Christina to show off her shape.

How many Ewoks had to die to make these boots?

Chia boots

Amy Lee cuts bizarre lines across her legs with boots that "don't go with this outfit," says fashion expert Danna Weiss. Try the top with boot-cut jeans over black stilettos.

strike out, but can these Oops! outfits be saved?

This is definitely not putting her best foot forward.

Stomach turner

Kathleen Turner knows better than to pair a suit with flip-flops! To give her shape, Weiss suggests she wear a jacket with a nipped-in waist — and heels.

This top belongs in study hall.

Does she own a mirror?

When wearing a graphic print, like Julie Delpy, don't hide your waist or you'll look blockish, warns Weiss. Pair the skirt with a tucked-in tank to accentuate the waist.

She's one inch away from a wardrobe malfunction.

Size does matter

In a dress Weiss calls "a lost cause," Lil' Kim's breasts make yet another red-carpet cameo. A floor-length strapless one with more coverage might be nice.
