calamities

fashion trauma Ever

From O.C. to oh no!

Super-svelte Mischa Barton does her enviable figure a true disservice in this unflattering dress. The bust sags so low, it looks like her breasts hang around her waist while the gathered skirt creates the illusion of very wide hips. Fashion expert Danna Weiss says, "If Mischa raised the top up and wore a skirt with pleats instead, she'd look great."

HER WINNING LOOK

It's all about the fit, as Mischa proves in this firty emerald dress. It's so well-tailored, she looks like she's floating on air.

party reject. The only salvageable part is the gold top, which Weiss suggests she "pair with a nude camisole and pencil skirt."

ERIKA'S WAITING FOR THE CHICAGO SEQUEL

Actress Erika Christensen went for a Roaring '20s style, but looks like a costume party reject. The only salvageable part is the gold top, which Weiss suggests she "pair with a nude camisole and pencil skirt."

celebs strike out, but can these Oops! outfits be saved?

THIS YELLOW
MESS DEFINITELY ISN'T SUPREME!

Diana Ross needs to mellow on the amount of yellow in one outfit! From her neon shoes to the matching fur, this color overload is a real eyesore. With bold shades, one standout piece is enough.

THIS OUTFIT
SHOULD SLEEP WITH THE FISHES!

Paget Brewster can't tell what season it is — from the waist down, the Huff star is winter-ready while her top is island-chic. Weiss says to "ditch the top (and the fish purse!) in favor of a cute brown sweater."

THIS IS A SHEER DISASTER

Jennifer Connelly knows how sexy a sheer blouse can be, but she forgot to choose the right undergarment. A camisole would be cute, but a bra just looks tacky.
